RMLD Homeowner Info Session Coming to Lynnfield Library on March 4th; New Electrification Rebates Will Be Announced

Lynnfield, MA – Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) invites residential customers to learn about their electric service as well as ways to save energy and money at an upcoming Homeowner Info Session which will take place at Lynnfield Library on March 4, 2020 at 7:00 pm. Topics include available energy efficiency programs such as rebates and the no-cost home energy assessment; RMLD online tools such as the online Bill Payment System and Online Store; programs such as Solar Choice and Shred the Peak; and energy efficiency tips. Technical staff will also be on hand to provide an overview of the home electrical service configuration covering topics such as ownership and safety. In addition, RMLD will unveil the details for two new residential electrification programs: a rebate for upgrading the home electrical panel, and an upgraded heat pump rebate.

These info sessions are a great opportunity for both new and experienced homeowners to learn about their electrical service and RMLD programs. RMLD customers who rent are also welcome!

Light refreshments will be served, and each attendee will receive a complimentary LED light bulb.

Customers who wish to attend are asked to register online at <https://www.rml.com/home/pages/homeowner-info-sessions>.
